

WRIGLEYS
— SOLICITORS —

Teaching School Alliances

Inclusive

Any school can become a teaching school if it can demonstrate successful partnerships, excellent leadership and a proven track record of school improvement.

If you are a teaching school, or looking to become one, then we can help.

Choice

Teaching schools and their partners provide leadership, training support and development through the collaborative sharing of expertise. What that means will be determined by the teaching school and its partners.

There is no agreed model for delivery of your proposed teaching school vision. You have the freedom to design what works for you.

Teaching schools are encouraged to set up a company to provide a stable framework to co-ordinate the work of the alliance. However, school companies can introduce additional complexities. As a minimum, a collaboration agreement between the designated teaching school and its partners is required.

Our experience can help you create the structure you need, including:

- The role of alliance partners and member schools
- Governance arrangements, decision making and accountability

Stability

Wrigleys advice package simplifies the process so that all partners know the cost and the route to the formation of the teaching school alliance, whichever model you prefer to use.

About Wrigleys

Wrigleys' is a leading charity specialist firm working with schools. Since advising on one of the first academy conversions under the Academies Act 2010, Wrigleys has worked with over 250 academies and free schools on conversion and post-conversion matters.

For further information please visit www.wrigleys.co.uk/education or contact:

Chris Billington
t: 0113 204 5734
e: chris.billington@wrigleys.co.uk

Elizabeth Wilson
t: 0113 204 5721
e: elizabeth.wilson@wrigleys.co.uk